Snow Removal Was Discussed By BPW Tuesday Evening

Inefficient Equipment and Narrow Streets Given As Reasons For Delay in Opening Streets—Other Matters Taken Up at Monthly Meeting of Board of Public Works.

One of the biggest problems in dealing with the heavy snows of the winter to Kingston is the lack of sufficient equipment. That was brought out Tuesday evening at the regular monthly meeting of the board of public works when the snow removal problem was thoroughly discussed, although no definite action was taken on any of the suggestions advanced at the session. Mayor C. J. Heiseleman advanced the suggestion that trucks be paid a certain amount for each yard of snow trucked away.

Superintendent James Norton pointed out that there were many narrow streets in the city and that the trucks were not able to move as rapidly as the trucks used on the county roads, which were much more efficient than the trucks owned by the board.

One of the problems was the unloading of trucks, and Superintendent Norton said he had taken steps to have the trucks dumped faster by promising to keep those on longest who handled the most loads.

The board decided to order a half carload of salt to be mixed with sand and used in sanding down icy spots on the streets.

Commissioner Forst suggested that signs be placed on Broadway at Chestnut street to warn drivers that the hill was dangerous when ice conditions prevailed. The board also discussed the matter of drive-in gas stations clearing the snow around the stations by throwing it into the streets after they had been plowed, and the matter was left with the superintendent to see what could be done.

Thomas J. Long of 214 Hasbrouck avenue who last season had a refreshment stand in Hasbrouck Park, was granted permission to operate the stand again this summer.

A. H. Wright, superintendent of the New York Central railroad, wrote that the question of installing red cat eye buttons on the Broadway crossing gates was being considered.

The request of the Kingston Savings Bank to have "no parking" signs placed in front of the bank was granted.

The P. N. A. Baseball Club asked for the use of the baseball diamond in Hasbrouck Park for the coming summer. The request was referred to the park committee.

E. J. Blinch wrote suggesting that the Welcome Arch which had been erected some years ago at the entrance to the city and later taken down being considered a menace to traffic, be re-erected in one of the city parks. The communication was filed.

A petition from residents of the Third Ward asking that the former TB Hospital grounds be transformed into a playground for the children of that locality was referred to the park committee.

S. Abramovitz of Albany avenue appeared before the board seeking for a job for one of his sons with the CWA. Commissioner Forst, who is also chairman of the local CWA, stated that there may be a possibility of placing one of the sons at work on one of the CWA projects.

The board audited a number of bills and then adjourned.

STEAM ARISING FROM ROOF WAS MISTAKEN FOR SMOKE

A still alarm brought the Wiltwick firemen to Furnace street early this morning, the scene of the fire in the Williams residence Tuesday noon, at which time the house was badly damaged and Mr. Williams burned about the face and hands. It was found that their services were not needed, steam arising from the roof having been mistaken for smoke.

ELEVENTH JUROR CHosen TO HEAR STEWEL TRIAL

Court Room, Albany, N. Y., Feb. 28 (AP).—The eleventh juror was selected today to hear the kidnap charge against Manner Stewart. Stewart is accused of abducting John J. O'Connell, who was released last July after his uncle, Democratic leader, paid $10,000. The eleventh juror was Lansing Swartout, a stone mason of Albany.

Comic Artist Dies

Coral Gables, Fla., Feb. 28 (AP).—John C. Terry, comic artist and a pioneer in animated cartoon films, died here last night. He came here last fall from New York, suffering from a kidney ailment. Terry created "Screening Smith," boy aviator strip. For The Associated Press feature service four years ago and the feature has achieved widespread success. It will be carried on by Noel Sickles, who has collaborated with Mr. Terry recently.

Chinese Four Trouble

Shanghai, Feb. 28 (AP).—Trouble is feared tomorrow at Tientsin where the Japanese garrison has insisted upon moving from the Japanese concession into Chinese territory outside the city to hold a grand review in honor of the enthronement of Henry Pu-Yi as emperor of Manchukuo. Deep resentment has been aroused among Chinese by announcement of the review.

Sensational Quiet Over Vienna As Habicht Ultimatum Date Ends

Tense Silence is Interpreted by Dollfuss Supporters as Indicative of Government's Strength and By Nazi Sympathizers as "Nazi Demonstration of Silence" Against Exiled Leader—Habicht Set Noon As Deadline As Heimwehr Says it is Ready to Act.

Vienna, Feb. 28 (AP).—Vienna was sensationally quiet today—the date of expiration of the so-called Habicht ultimatum.

Up until mid-afternoon, three hours after the expiration of the "truce" extended by Theodore Habicht, exiled leader of Austrian Nazis, there had been no demonstration nor disturbances in the capital, none reported in the provinces, and no new incidents on the Austro-German border.

Pro-government observers hailed the stillness as a demonstration of the government's strength. Nazi sympathizers said it was "a Nazi demonstration of silence against Habicht."

Foreign newspaper correspondents representing approximately 2,500 newspapers submitted a formal application to the government for permission to see the Socialist former burgomaster of Vienna, Karl Seitz, and other prisoners who repeatedly have been rumored as either dead or mistreated.

In a speech broadcast from Munich February 19, Habicht gave Chancellor Dollfuss until noon today to take the Austrian Nazis into the government or face a "renewed fight."

Heimwehr leaders had declared, "We in the Heimwehr (Fascist Home Guard) will repulse any attack, weapon in hand, with the same thoroughness with which we repulsed the Bolsheviks."

There also were two other shooting affairs—without casualties, however—on February 15.

As a result of these clashes, the border patrols were strengthened a fortnight ago. Since then conditions have been normal.

Spurious $5, $10 Bills Keeps Secret Service Busy All Over Nation

Sharp Upkeep of Counterfeiting in General, These Notes in Particular, Reported Approaching Record Figures—1934 Fiscal Year Ahead of 1933.

Washington, Feb. 28 (AP).—A litter of spurious $5 and $10 notes is keeping the secret service on the jump from coast to coast.

A sharp upkeep of counterfeiting in general and these notes in particular was reported to be approaching record figures.

Reliable figures show activities in the 1934 fiscal year thus far have surpassed 1933's record of 3,003 arrests and $921,499 in fake currency seized.

White-haired William H. Moran, the secret service chief who has spent a life-time tracking down counterfeiters, says 80 per cent of these arrests will result in convictions.

He explains the recent big increase in private money-making as due among other things to:

Out-of-work bootleggers; the comparative ease of manufacturing crude imitation money by photographic methods; hard times and the availability of the automobile for "pushing" the money in small towns and passing swiftly on.

Moran maintains emphatically, however, that the delicate microscope art found on United States paper money never has been exactly reproduced, and he wants the public to know it.

Modern counterfeiting, he holds, generally is even cruder than the old and can be easily spotted.

Years back counterfeiting gangs usually had a close working connection with those seeking to compete with lawful money employ cameras and photographic equipment.

Moran has figures to show that the counterfeiting seldom gets very far. Of the annual fake-money seizures, half usually gets into circulation, and the other half is taken at the arrest. On this basis business paid a counterfeiting tax of $450,000 in the 1933 fiscal year.

Secretary Dern Hits Back at His Critics

Washington, Feb. 28 (AP).—Secretary Dern, chief of war department, which has been criticized on Capitol Hill, is hitting back at some of the ideas he hears bruited about.

In a letter, the contents of which were disclosed today, he hinted he would withdraw his request for 1,300 new army planes if Congress presses the idea of establishing a separate budget and separate promotion list for military forces.

Chairman McNair, of the House military committee, to whom the letter was addressed, meanwhile pushed a resolution in the House to investigate all army procurement policies. It would let the committee hire clerks for the work.

A three-week-old grand jury investigation of war department contract making today led justice department agents into the social activities of some of those involved. Indictments are expected by next week.

New Broadcast System Pu-Yi Makes Bid For News is Effective Foreign Recognition Tomorrow over Nation On Enthronement Eve

Feature Is Designed to Give Radio Broadcasting Stations Benefit of a Carefully Selected and Edited Summary of Daily Events—To Be Heard in Morning and Evening.

New York, Feb. 28 (AP).—A new system of news broadcasting, designed to give radio stations the benefit of a carefully selected and edited resume of the events of the day and at the same time to protect newspapers from unauthorized use of their news, will go into effect throughout the United States tomorrow.

The plan, worked out by publishers, representatives of press associations, and of broadcasting organizations, calls for two five-minute news broadcasts, not earlier than 9:30 a. m. and 9 p. m., standard time in the city in which the broadcasting station is located. Each broadcast will be for a period of five minutes and will consist of the cream of the news gathered by The Associated Press, the United Press and the International News Service, the three largest press associations.

Every broadcasting station in the country is eligible to participate in the dissemination of the news report under the plan worked out by the national radio committee. This bureau, with headquarters in New York and with James W. Barrett, experienced newspaperman, in charge, is organized by the publishers, broadcasters and press associations.

To the bureau and to the broadcasting of news each of the three elements is making a contribution. Each of the three press associations gives a copy of its report; the publishers consent to the broadcasting of news which belongs to them and their wire services; and the broadcasting stations pay the expense of operating the bureau and of distributing the news among themselves.

The bureau is to be operated on a co-operative basis, the expenses allotted among the stations participating.

The bureau, under Barrett's direction, will select from the whole report of the three associations the most important and interesting news and condense it into a report suitable for a five minute broadcast.

The broadcast in the morning is to be made up of news distributed to morning papers, and the night broadcast from news sent to afternoon papers.

In addition to the two regularly scheduled broadcasts the bureau will provide the participating stations with brief bulletins—not over thirty words each—on outstanding events. These may be broadcast at any time, and will be, in effect, an "extra" edition of the radio news program.

The type of news to be handled in this manner is the sort published in extra editions of newspapers.

The news to be broadcast will be sent to the National Broadcasting Company and the Columbia Broadcasting System over automatic telegraph machines. To other stations it will be sent tolls collect by commercial telegraph at press rates.

The whole plan was designed to eliminate the confusion and controversies involving publishers and broadcasters and marks the first effort to put radio news on an organized basis in the United States.

The Columbia Broadcasting System today set 10:30 a. m. and 11:15 p. m., eastern standard time, for the two broadcasts over its chain stations in the eastern and central time zones.

The National Broadcasting Company said the same times had been selected tentatively for its stations similarly situated. Independent stations will fix the times of their own broadcasts within the limitations imposed.

PLANE AIDS 20 MEN OVER FLOES TO LAND

Astrakhan, U. S. S. R., Feb. 28 (AP).—With the help of an airplane, 20 of the 500 fishermen marooned on the ice floes of the Caspian Sea reached shore safely today.

The rescue plane landed on an ice floe which bore more than 100 men. It distributed food to the marooned fishermen, then, after an aerial survey, guided 20 of them to land across the drifting ice.

The ice-breaker Ertz and more airplanes now are making efforts to reach the other men. If the present favorable weather continues the rescue parties hope to save all.

Rear Admiral Retires AT SUNSET GUN TODAY

San Francisco, Feb. 28 (AP).—Rear Admiral George Williams Laws, whose 49 years of distinguished service lit brightly on him, retired today to devote himself to the serious business of improving his golf.

At sunset, the two-star flag of the 12th Naval District Commandant was to be hoisted upon as 12 guns boomed in formal salute to the retiring officer.

A native of Shenandoah, Iowa, he was president of his graduating class at Annapolis in 1891. He played on the first naval academy football team to meet West Point.

During the Spanish-American war, he served on the U. S. S. Justin, and for his services in the World War, he won the navy cross.

Peter J. Halloran To Investigate All Local CWA Workers

In Cooperation With the Local CWA It Is Planned to Investigate All Present CWA Employees—First to Be Investigated Are Those Taken From NRS Lists.

Peter J. Halloran, commissioner of public welfare and superintendent of the City Home, in cooperation with the local CWA will take immediate steps to investigate all present CWA employees in the city as to their need of employment. This is being done all over the state so that CWA jobs will be allotted to those who are actually in need of employment.

Mr. Halloran said today that acting under orders he had received from the government the first group of CWA workers here to be investigated are the persons who were employed from the list of the National Recovery Service and for whom there is no previous record available in a public or private relief agency.

According to instructions received the commissioner of public welfare shall make individual reports to the local CWA as to the status of each employee of the local CWA who is investigated. For the time being and until further instructions are received any allowable replacements shall be taken from those now on the list of the public welfare department as active relief cases, or from applicants whose needs have been determined by investigation.

But, the statement continued, "two years of benevolent rule in Manchukuo based on the wise, liberal doctrine of Confucius has brought happiness, peace, security, well-being and new life to this nation's 30,000,000 inhabitants."

"In this day when dictatorship and so-called democracies are stifling the people's liberties and when all nations of the world are rearing for new wars, it is not a wholesome thing to have in Asia a country like Manchukuo, which is dedicated to peace and unity with all of the world and which guarantees full freedom of conscience and creed to the individual."

"It is not worth something to the world that Manchukuo stands at the crossroads between the Soviet in the Orient, as a bulwark against inroads of Bolshevism into the Far East."

"We have given the world proof in the last two years of our stability and the permanence of our security. It is not our contention to go before the world hat in hand, with head bowed, to beg recognition. Our own achievements in realms of peace, trade and finance for the welfare of the people must automatically of themselves win foreign recognition and gain us a place in the family of nations and the goodwill of the whole world."

"Upon ascending the throne tomorrow, I rejoice that through the grace of heaven and the unselfish, unremitting toil of the people and of our government officials, we have measurably advanced toward realization of making Manchukuo 'an earthly paradise.' In our country, young though it is, the common people come into a divine heritage of peace, plenty and contentment."

The Emperor-elect declared to maintain inviolate the principle of the open door, "Manchukuo established a basis of morality, benevolence and equality. We guarantee equality of treatment to all natives and foreigners alike. Racial discrimination has no place in our charter."

Promotion of internal solidarity, termination of international strife, and cultivation of goodwill and friendship of all nations, he continued, will be the aim of the new empire. All international obligations will be scrupulously fulfilled, he added.

Concluding the audience, the last ruler of the "Middle Kingdom" (China) and sovereign-elect of the new Manchurian Empire, spoke with deep emotion of his aspirations and his duties and responsibilities as emperor.

"It will be my policy in the future, as in the past," he said, "to guide the people of this country in the sacred doctrine of 'Wang-Tao,' which has as its basis the Confucian principle of benevolent rule and the ideal that all nations, as well as individuals, should observe the golden rule in dealings with one nation."

"We all belong to one great human family, and should regard one another as brothers and sisters. If we do that, there can be no war, no hatred, no evil in the world."

New Unemployment Program Made Public By President

Needy Individuals Placed in Three Groups, Rural, Stranded Populations, Unemployed in Large Cities—Each Group To Receive Different Treatment—Work Provisions Are For Six Months for Each Individual Approved.

Washington, Feb. 28 (AP).—The following is the text of the new unemployment program made public at the White House today:

"The experience of the past six months has shown that the problem of unemployment must be faced on more than one front.

"Coincident with the plans for the demobilization of civil works have been the development of a program to meet the peculiar needs of three separate and distinct groups in need through no fault of their own.

"It has been found that these three groups fall into the following classifications:

"(1) Distressed families in rural areas.

"(2) Those comprising 'stranded populations,' i. e., living in single-industry communities in which there is no hope of future re-employment, such as miners in work-out fields.

"(3) The unemployed in large cities.

"The administration will be guided by these groupings in expending the $250,000,000 recently appropriated by Congress.

U.S. Weather Bureau's Brave Statement, Says Winter Was Warm One

U. S. Department, Holding Out For Grandfather's Winters, Says Country Still in Cycle of Above-Normal Winter Temperatures That Started Around 1900.

Washington, Feb. 28 (AP).—Shivering slightly, the U. S. weather bureau ended its official winter today and declared bravely that it was a "warmer" one than grandfather used to know.

The bureau hastened to explain that the recent bitter weather sweeping the east and other sections hasn't pulled the general cold level down to normal.

February chalked up new all-time low temperature averages for the months from Portland, Maine, to Richmond, Va., and west to the Ohio Valley.

But, backing the old-timer's arguments, the weather bureau says the country is still in a cycle of above-normal average winter temperatures that started around the turn of the century.

Official records show a warm December, warm January, and a warm February outside of the northeast and mid-Atlantic States. For statistical convenience these three months constitute the official weather bureau winter.

In January, for instance, most of the nation was comfortably free of cold waves, with the heat climbing ten to 16 degrees above normal in the northwest.

But the last three days of January saw a cold wave sweeping from the Hudson Bay region into the east, and that section has been pretty cold ever since.

Temporary Relief.

"The needy unemployed living in cities and towns and who, in the course of coming months may reasonably look forward to regular jobs, are entitled to, and should receive insofar as possible, adequate assurance of means to maintain themselves during the balance of the period of their enforced idleness."

The federal government, both in relief measures and in its civil works program, now nearing completion, has been meeting an emergency situation.

"Direct relief as such, whether in the form of cash or relief in kind, is not an adequate way of meeting the needs of able-bodied workers."

"Very properly, therefore, an opportunity to give the worker a share in their services to the community is being sought."

"The federal government has no intention of desiring to force either upon or out of the worker either up-

Court Onits.
 Philadelphia—Judge William C. Lewis of Domestic Relations Court, dug down in his jeans for the 25-cent postage due on a piece of registered mail.
 The envelope contained bills statements from credit stores showing amounts overdue and a dun from a building and loan association. They were the offerings of John Totto, who is under subpoena to tell why he is behind on a support order for two grandchildren.

Time For Reading.
 Chicago—Arraigned for taking four books from a bookshop, Edward Martin told the judge:
 "I only wanted to study modern fiction and couldn't afford to buy the books."
 Judge J. William Brooks gave him a year in jail, where there is a free library.

Hot Spot Is Snow.
 Philadelphia—So deep was the snow that a four-man crew was placed on the plow—and all four drove into the drifts. The plow got so overheated backing the snow that it burst into flames. Firemen followed its trail to the sudden end and took care of the matter.

Olive Town Board Held Regular Meeting

West Shokan, Feb. 28.—At the regular session of the town board held on Friday, February 23, at the I. O. O. F. Hall, many routine matters were discussed and a number of welfare and other bills audited.

A feature of the meeting was the presence of a representative of the Universal Road Machinery Co. of Kingston, who addressed the board relative to the purchase of a gasoline shovel, the desired size to cost around $3,000. No motions were made, but on the request of Justice Henry Winchell the matter was postponed to some later date.

In a statement to The Freeman correspondent, Judge Winchell for himself alone, states he desires the fullest publicity be given the taxpayers of the proposed purchase that he desires to fulfill a pre-election promise, "to comply with the wishes of the people" and that his mind is entirely open. Also, that if public sentiment in the town is for it, he also is for it. That if considerable opposition develops he is against it. In order to learn the sentiment of his constituents he takes this method of inviting any interested person in the town to present their opinions, either for or against the proposition.

Need to Be Basis for CWA Employment

Frederick I. Daniels, executive director of the State Civil Works Administration, today announced receipt of a telegram from the conference of Public Welfare officials, now in session in Albany, accepting the responsibility for putting into effect the change of the Federal CWA program to a needs basis.

In a resolution which was passed unanimously by the Conference, Commissioners of Public Welfare and other Public Welfare officials throughout the state pledged their aid in making investigations and preparing complete lists of persons eligible for relief who are now on CWA work.

Commissioners of Public Welfare are in no way responsible for CWA layoffs or curtailment of the program but were asked by the State Works Administration to lend their cooperation in determining those CWA workers who are in need. A brief notice is to be sent out by the State Administration to all CWA workers stating that the CWA now has a relief status and that the local Commissioners of Public Welfare have been requested to investigate the need of each worker who is to be kept on the payroll.

In making public the resolution, Mr. Daniels praised the patriotism and cooperation of the Welfare Commissioners in accepting this burden in addition to their tremendous present responsibilities, and pledged the State CWA to give them every assistance possible in the task. The Commissioners of Welfare, he said, are the most logical, capable and proper agencies for this work.

All further hiring on CWA jobs was placed on a basis of need by Federal Civil Works Administrator, Harry L. Hopkins, following the recent passage of the law appropriating $350,000,000 for the continuance of the work. Cuts in the number of workers employed are to be made first among those not in need.

PLATTEKILL GRANGE SUPPER
IS PLANNED FOR THURSDAY

Plattekill, Feb. 28.—The committee in charge of the order supper and dance to be held in the Grange Hall Thursday evening, March 1, met with the chairman Edgar Cronk on Thursday evening, February 22. The following menu was planned: Tomato cocktail, escalloped oysters, creamed potatoes, peas and carrots, cabbage salad, rolls, pickles, apple pie and coffee. The supper will be served at 6:30 with dancing to follow. Pardee and Allen will furnish the music. Tickets may be purchased from the members of the committee for a nominal sum.

At the regular meeting of the Grange on Saturday evening, February 24, the literary program had for its topic, "Highlights of History," and was opened by a recitation "The Stars and Stripes" by Marjorie Minard, introducing a tableau with Columbia as the central figure.

During the presentation of this tableau by Anna Lestch, Evelyn Pressler, Grace Blauvelt, Mrs. Edgar Kaup and Mrs. Oscar Jansen the Grange sang "Columbia, the Gem of the Ocean." A calendar call of historical events by members of the Grange was followed by the amusing game of "Human Checkers."

Mrs. Charles Jenkins gave a brief summary of the "Highlights of Plattekill Grange History," ending with the announcement that Mrs. Charles Master Freestone, the new member of the State Service and Hospitality Committee, a fitting climax to other honors this Grange has garnered in the past, and an honor every patron should be glad to see conferred on so deserving and competent a member as Mrs. Everett. Mrs. Everett responded briefly, voicing her appreciation of the Grange work and her feeling that she has always been repaid two-fold for every effort she had put forth in its behalf.

The next number on the program was an amusing recitation, "An' So Was I," by Mrs. W. J. Van Wyck, followed by a vocal solo, "My Own United States," by Grace Blauvelt, accompanied by Melissa Blauvelt. "Historical Sayings" That Have Lived, was then conducted by the lecturer and the literary program came to a close with singing by the Grange, "Father of the Land We Love."

Mrs. Frank Lozier and Mrs. Arthur Diener were appointed delegates from the local Grange to the meeting of Pomona Grange to be held in the Lake Katrine Grange hall, Friday, March 2. This will consist of both afternoon and evening sessions.

The regular business will be conducted during the afternoon, with reports from the delegates to State Grange. In the evening the Pomona officers will be installed by a State Grange officer.

On Tuesday evening, March 13, the play, "Silas Smidge," will be given in the Grange hall by a cast of young people from Modena. The local Grange will share in the net proceeds of this entertainment.

LAKE HILL.
 Lake Hill, Feb. 28.—Grenville Quick was a week-end visitor in Attitash.

Romney and Reynolds Lanvin Inspirations

Paris—Lanvin's usual artistic collection pays much attention to floor-length dresses suitable for afternoon parties and informal evening wear.

Picturesque frocks like those associated with Romney or Reynolds portraits include a pale blue cotton crepe frock, also a white organdie.

Both of these are styled-embroidered, with large drooping elbow sleeves and long full skirts and wide taffeta sashes. One is accompanied by a shirred fabric bergerie capelet drooping at front and back, while the other follows similar lines, in legborn.

Copyright, 1934, by Fairchild

The suit is of navy saphyr in diagonal knit with jacket of about fingertip length which fits snugly from waist down. A novelty feature is afforded by the bib collar of ruff type that may be worn in any number of ways, opening at side, front or back or not worn at all, as the small sketch shows. Metal hook and eye closing and the contrast of coral for the blouse are interesting notes.

Federal Supply of Surplus Foods Here

2225. Butter, Flour, Cereal and Smoked Pork Received Here for Distribution to Needy Families—Distribution Made from Commissary in Water Board Barn Adjacent City Hall.

Commissioner of Public Welfare Peter J. Halloran stated this morning that Kingston had received the following supplies so far this year from the federal surplus foods: 34 cases of eggs, 3,600 pounds of butter, 300 sacks of flour, each sack containing 25½ pounds, 600 two-pound packages of milk wheate, a cereal put up by the government, and 327 pounds of smoked pork.

These federal supplies of food are being distributed to needy families in the city through the commissary in the old water board barn, adjoining the city hall, where heads of families, who receive home relief cards are given so much of each article weekly.

$15,000 Fire Today Razes Big House

The St. Remy fire department answered a call at 2:30 a. m. this morning for one of the worst fires it has experienced since it was organized. The fire was at the home of Mrs. Barbara Costa in Union Center. The building and its contents, including furnishings, valuable papers, and about $1,000 in cash were a total loss. The damage is estimated at approximately $15,000. The fire was discovered when the family awoke, smelling smoke, they had barely enough time to leave the building and could save nothing.

There were no phones in the vicinity of the fire and Mrs. Costa had to drive to the St. Remy Bakery, a distance of about 2 miles to send in the alarm, which was quickly responded to by the firemen. The firemen endured the hardships of sub-zero weather and the driver of the apparatus, Phil Fischer, Jr., had his nose frost bitten.

Arriving at the fire the men were unable to save the main house but did excellent work in saving the adjoining building. They were complimented by Mrs. Costa on their quick response and splendid work which was supervised by Chief P. Fischer, Capt. Robert Hoffman and Second Lieutenant Donald Wells.

Mr. and Mrs. Costa and son, also her father, Mr. Willis, are staying at the home of their neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Eckert.

Stark Tragedy Told In Suicide Death

Brooklyn, N. Y., Feb. 28. (P.)—A man and his wife were found dead today in a gas-filled apartment, near a table on which lay a notice of dis-possession.

Police saw their death as a suicide pact. They had been ordered to leave the apartment by noon tomorrow, police said.

The man, Ernest C. Howard, 52, was an unemployed stonemason, his wife, Mary Howard, 50, was in a chair opposite him. They were found in their basement apartment at 225 Foster avenue.

A gun was found under the man's body, and three bullet holes were in the opposite wall, but death resulted from gas, police said.

The superintendent of the apartment house said the pair had been selling their furniture piece by piece to live.

George B. Schneider of Los Angeles was given back a valuable stick pin by a bandit who held him up when the owner told the highwayman the pin could be traced if efforts were made to pawn it.

DOCTOR ADVISES JOUNCING LIVER!

Save Many People From Good Looking Up of Liver and Gall Bladder!

A doctor who has treated thousands of cases of liver and gall bladder trouble, advises that the best way to keep the liver and gall bladder in good health is to "jounce" them. This can be done by using a special device called a "Liver Jouncer" which is a small, portable, electrically operated machine. It is used by placing it over the liver and gall bladder area and turning it on for a few minutes. This causes the liver and gall bladder to "jounce" or vibrate, which helps to break up any stones or sludge that may be present. The doctor says that this is a very effective and safe method of treating liver and gall bladder trouble, and that it can be done at home without the need of a doctor's visit.

GETTING OUR OWN WAY

A CONDEMNED prisoner at Sax King prison recently asked the warden for "a few drinks of repeat liquor," explaining that he had read of such a request being granted to a man in another prison who had little time left to enjoy anything on the earth.

When the warden refused permission for this, the man told guards he would seek the intervention of the governor to get him what he wanted.

Strange, isn't it, that a man about to enter the next world should care so much about getting "a few drinks of repeat liquor." Stranger, too, that he should see nothing inappropriate in taking up the gratification of his desire with the governor of the state!

Our first reaction to this is, "Poor devil, he'll have so little time left to enjoy anything, why not give him what he wants?" But there is an interesting moral in this incident—if a man may once in a very long time be permitted in this column!

If you stop to think about it there is nothing surprising in the fact that a man with such a distorted sense of values should end his life in the death house of a prison. A man who sees nothing disproportionate in asking the attention of the governor of the state for his own whim or fancy is not likely to count the cost to others of anything he may want.

People whose momentary desires are of the most supreme importance in their scheme of life are among the most likely candidates for the other side of prison bars. It may seem a far cry from asking the governor to allow liquor into one's cell to "sticking up" a man for the money to buy what one wants—but both are actuated by the same primary impulse—to get what one wants.

It is with children that we should start to inculcate the sense of values which keeps one's desires in their proper place—from the cradle that the ability must be developed for doing without getting our own way.

New Unemployment Program Made Public

on the country or the unemployed themselves a system of relief which is repugnant to American ideals of individual self reliance. Therefore, work programs which would not normally be undertaken by public bodies, but which are at the same time outside of the field of private industry, will be projected and prosecuted in and near industrial communities. Labor on these projects will not be expected of dependent members of the communities who are unable to work, but will be confined to those needy unemployed who can give adequate return for the unemployment benefits which they receive.

Six Months Period.

"Work will be given to an individual for a period not to exceed six months. This is in order that it may not be considered, or utilized, as a permanent method of support. It will be administered by and under the direction of those responsible for the unemployment relief activities in industrial communities.

Every effort will be made to continue opportunities for work for the professional groups in need—teachers, engineers, architects, artists, nurses and others.

"This program expresses a conviction that industrial workers who are unemployed and in need of relief should be given an opportunity for livelihood by the prosecution of a flexible program of public works. The federal states will be aided as the federal relief law provides, in the financing of this enterprise.

HOOR OF MUSIC AT FAIR STREET REFORMED

The second of the Hour of Music series will be given at the Fair Street Reformed Church Sunday afternoon at four o'clock.

The program for this Sunday will consist of an organ recital played by Mrs. Elling, organist of the church. Mrs. Charles F. Doty, contralto of the First Reformed Church will be the assisting soloist and W. Whiting Frodenburgh will play the accompaniment.

The first of these Sunday afternoon programs attracted a good audience at the First Reformed Church last Sunday and brought forth many expressions of appreciation for the excellence and beauty of the program as rendered.

SUB-ZERO EVERY DAY IN RECORD AT OWLS HEAD

Owls Head, N. Y., Feb. 28. (P.)—A month with every day recording a sub-zero temperature is the February record of Owls Head, the "cold capital" of New York state.

Ezra Carpenter, supervisor of the town of Belmont and official temperature taker here, said today that the mercury had fallen below the zero mark every day this month.

STUFFED DATES

DO WE ever tire of the delectable dates? They are so good to serve with the afternoon tea, in salads, as desserts, as a confection, or stuffed with various fillings, one has an infinite variety and they are always welcome. The following are a few fillings for stuffed dates:

Orange Peanut.

To one-third of a cupful of peanut butter add slowly five tablespoonfuls of orange juice and one-half teaspoonful of grated orange rind. Fill the dates and roll them in chopped salted peanuts.

Apricot Coconut.

Wash one cupful of dried apricots. Steam over boiling water to soften, then run through a food chopper with one-half cupful of nut meats and two-thirds of a cupful of coconut. Add two tablespoonfuls of orange juice and one teaspoonful of orange rind. Mix until well blended. Stuff dates and roll in sugar.

Marshmallow Coconut.

Cut one-fourth pound of marshmallows into quarters with wet scissors. Stuff each date with a piece of marshmallow, placing the cut side up. Dip the sticky surface of the marshmallow into the shredded coconut.

Jumbo dates are prepared by pressing the edges of two dates together and stuffing as one.

Parisian Sweets.

Take one package of dates, one package of coconut, one-fourth pound each of figs and dried apricots, put through a food chopper. Add a tablespoonful of orange juice and a teaspoonful of the grated rind. Mix well and divide into parts. For fruit caramels pack the portion into small pans lightly oiled or buttered, freeze into squares, and place a nut meat on each square. Chill, cut into cubes with a sharp knife that has been dipped into water.

Dried fruits may be used for fruit favors, turtles, animals, and various attractive things like ginger bread men may be made from figs, raisins, dates and nuts.

Civil Service Worker Drew Pay, Hired a Sub

New York, Feb. 28. (P.)—Mayor LaGuardia was aroused today by the report of his commissioner of accounts that a stenographer was on the city payroll for 11 years and hired a substitute to do his work for less money.

The mayor announced he had transmitted to District Attorney William C. Dodge a report of Paul Blanchard, the commissioner, recommending criminal and civil action against the stenographer, Herman Blume. Blanchard said Blume drew $21,000 in salary checks as a civil service stenographer in the second district court and was not entitled to the money.

He said he had not reported for work since January 1, 1922, but was on the payroll until two months ago.

BLOND GODDESS

A New Serial by Herbert Jensen

She had told the man she loved that she loved him, and he had told her that he loved her. She had told him that she loved him, and he had told her that he loved her. She had told him that she loved him, and he had told her that he loved her.

Chapter 44
THE PLUNGE

SWIFTER plunged the current. The cavern seemed wider, but the roof was lower. A down-projecting stalactite struck his head. He staggered, he struggled to keep his hands above his head to guard against a repetition.

He was thrown against wall projections, and sucked away into the greedy current. He became dazed with an ever-increasing dizziness. It was an effort to breathe with the spray lashing his face.

His arms ached with the effort of upholding them. He put his elbows upon the top of his life-jacket and clasped his hands above his head. He realized that he was growing weak with the buffeting.

But the minutes, he knew, were rolling into precious hours. Soon he hoped to be spewed into the daylight—into the quiet waters of some mangrove-fringed lagoon that joined the sea.

Gray daylight showed above him! He was being shot downstream between creper-hung walls. But half-conscious, he realized that although he was in the main channel the width of it was diminishing.

The stream was branching variously. A danger lay in that. Sucked into one of the branches he might be forced into a swamp from which he might not be able to extricate himself.

He must keep to the main channel at all costs! Only the main channel would have water-force enough to have cut through the swamps to the sea.

Suddenly he shouted with hope. Ahead, glimpsed on either side of a jutting spire of rock that thrust upward from the seething water about it, were low grass-covered banks backed with palmetto and mangroves. Further on was a turquoise blue sea!

Frank's nostrils twitched with the tang of beach help rotting in the sun. That flaming disc burst, as he looked, through a layer of clouds lying low above the horizon. It was nearing sunset.

As the current twisted him toward the divided channel, he felt a tug at his legs, an inexorable suction that pulled his feet away from the surface current while the buoyancy of the life-belt tended to float it toward the peaceful lagoon.

Subconsciously he struggled a little as if the attempt could relieve his legs of some clinging, unseen menace. The suction pulled harder.

Sudden realization swept him. The underground river discharged here at sea level; but also it plunged into the hidden channel that could have no outlet except in the floor under that glittering, turquoise sea ahead!

Frankie now, he failed his arms. He kicked and thrashed with his legs. Striving to free himself of the life-belt so that he could swim himself on the surface and swim to the safety that was now just a few yards away, he found that the fiber knots were swollen beyond loosening.

The breath gasped in his lungs. Deeper the suction pulled him. He was spun about in the inextinguishable grip of a whirlpool.

Lower he sank. He claved for a support that was denied him. Down he was dragged into a vortex. He felt the waters closing about his head.

Gasping for a last despairing breath, he was shot down into a great funnel. A crashing and roaring sound filled his ears. His body was hammered and flailed against the rough sides of this terrible aqueduct. His lungs were on fire—no, they were burning.

There was a blinding flash on the mirror behind his eyes. Then the darkness of oblivion.

JANICE KENT walked slowly back to the little clearing where their over-burning fire smoked amid its rocky bed. She seated herself upon the back-log and stared apathetically at the glowing embers.

Something had gone dead within her—something that in dying had left a void that yet was capable of weeping. Her soul was too confused for analysis but that very confusion released a swarm of queer mental

When Pastor Chipp Brought "Blue Laws" To Rosendale

Rev. William D. Chipp Closed Businesses and Amusements in Rosendale on Sunday, Although That Day Brought Most Business to That Village—How He Crusaded and Won Converts to His Cause.

Some of the older residents of the village of Rosendale still remember when the Blue Laws came to Rosendale about 1894 and that industrious town which was still a booming cement center was forced to observe Sunday. It was the Rev. William D. Chipp, pastor of the Rosendale Baptist Church, who invoked the Blue Laws.

For years Rosendale village had been a thriving metropolis. Pay day was Saturday night and the following day the cement workers came to town and purchased supplies. Every store was wide open and the village taverns likewise did a thriving business for the "hard rock" men loved their beer and other stimulants.

Sunday had been a busy day in Rosendale for years. Everything was wide open, the coal dealer sold coal, the clothing dealer regarded Sunday as his banner day. Saloons were open, jewelry stores were doing a thriving business and every grocery store was rushed during the day. In fact Sunday was the busy day of the week.

This had been going on for some time when along came Pastor Chipp, then a young man of about 20 years. The congregation had had trouble with its former pastor and he had resigned. Pastor Chipp was a young man full of pep and with ideas which were somewhat opposed to transgressing the Sabbath into a bargain counter day. He sought peace and quiet. For a time after his arrival he was just another pastor with an idea of religion but shortly the people began to sit up and take notice. It was not long before his church was filled every Sunday. None of the other pastors ever got so close to home in their sermons and beside some of the deacons kept store.

However Chipp had come to Rosendale to preach and lead the way to making the town a better town so far as observance of Sunday was concerned.

An account of the affair published at the time says, "Pastor Chipp came out from Kingston to preach and preach he did and such up-to-date Christianity with local applications that soon the little church was crowded."

Chipp warned the saloons to close on Sunday and he also took it into his hands to see that Sunday was observed quietly in the village. He issued a proclamation one Sunday forbidding Sunday baseball playing in Rosendale village. However next day the Rod and Reel Baseball Club of Kingston went out to play the Rosendale team. The Rosendale team received its first beating at the hands of the Kingston Club when they lost 16 to 3. However the next beating came the following day when Chipp had nine warrants issued for the nine members of the defeated club. Five of the players were rounded up by a village constable and taken before a police justice. Chipp appeared in court with one of the ablest criminal lawyers in the state and the five members of the team took one look and rather than stand trial surrendered to the pastor without a murmur. They each paid a fine of $1 without putting up a battle and then to show that he was "a bully good fellow" and that there were no personal feelings, Pastor Chipp invited the five boys over to Sammons Hotel and bought them their supper. All accepted the invitation and a report of the affair printed at the time says, "all stand ready to fight for Chipp in the future." Those who paid the $1 fines were Peter Cragan, DeWitt Palen, Julius Oppenheimer, Augustus Roe and Chauncey Stewart. After that Chipp began to be heralded as the "Boy Parkhurst" of Rosendale.

Still determined to make Rosendale observant of the Sabbath, Pastor Chipp issued a warning to all saloons and places of business to close under threat of further action. Some of the saloons failed to observe the word of the dictator and Mr. Chipp had Abe Sammons arrested. At the hearing Chipp appeared in person. The matter was adjourned. Then others in the village agreed that if Chipp would withdraw the charge against Sammons and no new prosecutions could be started against other Sunday violators, some of whom even were operating without a license, that they would close their saloons on Sunday. Chipp seeing the purpose of his crusade achieved, agreed to the terms.

Then Sunday really came to Rosendale. However, "the boys" did not go without their "ends" for Barney Harkins rolled kegs out in the rear of his place, locked the door and paraded up and down the village streets while "the boys" had an elegant time emptying kegs free of expense.

This crusade, however, had its amusing side too. One shoe dealer whose reputation was known to be such as never to turn away a dollar, was almost driven into a state of "nervous" by a joke which some of the lads played on him after the edict to close business places had been invoked. One of the clerks from Dockstader's drug store went to the shoe merchant Sunday and asked to buy a pair of rubbers. There was no need for rubbers at that time. Rather than face Pastor Chipp the shoe dealer refused. The drug clerk then set others up to go to the store and ask to buy all kinds of footwear. By night the shoe dealer, constantly refusing to do business and bring down the wrath of Pastor Chipp upon him, was wringing his hands and loudly lamenting the fact that he had lost $200 worth of trade that day.

Those were the days when Rosendale was booming. From the mouth of the Rondout for some twelve miles up the stream Rosendale cement was king. So great was the reputation of Rosendale natural cement that all hydraulic cements were known as Rosendale cement, even though mined in other localities. This was done to distinguish it from Portland or manufactured cement. Few people realize that one firm supplied 60,000 barrels of Rosendale cement for the construction of the Brooklyn bridge.

About 1890 there were eleven firms with a combined production of 2,000,000 barrels of cement annually operating in this twelve mile area along the Rondout creek. Many hundreds of men were employed and strikes were not unknown. The Knights of Labor was an active organization which had the welfare of the workmen at heart.

Of the eleven firms operating in the locality, nine of them had to transport their products from 4 to 12 miles to tide-water to make shipments. This naturally made the difference in the profits received by the companies. It was in 1887 that the Knights of Labor took up a fight to compel ex-congressman James G. Lindsley, local representative of the Old Newark Lime and Cement Company in this city, to pay the same wage as the other ten mills paid their employees. A committee of workmen waited on him and stated their purpose. Next day these men were discharged. A strike was called and the executive board of the Knights of Labor was called in and tried to settle the strike. The organization took a very active part in labor matters in those days and frequent meetings were held. Nationally known speakers on labor questions were heard at the old Academy of Music on O'Reilly street.

Should some of the old timers of Rosendale "open up" many interesting stories might be told of the good old days when cement was king.

Sundown Stories

Without Sight
By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

Top Notch, the Rooster, Christopher Columbus Crow and Rip, the Dog, were very and when they saw the two Bear cubs. They had expected they would be lovable and interesting looking little cubs, but they weren't much at all. The Ducks were surprised that the Bears could be so horrible about them.

Little Duck was always so cunning and sweet. It was lucky, thought the Puddle Muddlers, that Jelly and Honey Bear were pleased with these little fellows, shapeless things. Willy Nilly had an idea what they were thinking, and so he said: "I don't suppose they will have much for six weeks or so, will they?"

"Oh, no," agreed Honey Bear. "The little darlings are so young now." "It will be fun to watch them grow," continued Willy Nilly. "Before we know it they'll be regular cubs."

The Puddle Muddlers felt relieved. So the cubs would not look like this for long! "Have you named them?" asked Willy Nilly.

"Oh, yes," answered Honey Bear. "We're calling the smaller of the two Jupiter Bear. We think it's such a nice big name for such a little baby Bear. And we're calling the other one Blacky, as our family name, of course, is that of Black Bear."

"Do you suppose they like us?" Rip the Dog, asked. "They're not paying any attention to us, so maybe they don't," he ended sadly. "They can't see," replied Honey Bear.

"What?" asked Rip. This, he thought, was terrible.

BANK VICTIMS GET BREAK.

The Guardian National Bank of Commerce in Detroit, famous for making the availability of bank failures which produced the financial panic last March, now atones for its sins with a fine bit of human kindness. It deserves recognition at a time when banks, bankers and big bank depositors are generally lumped as hard and selfish.

The bank, preparing to distribute $8,000,000 on February 22, as an 8 per cent pay-off to depositors, is going to pay 100 per cent to all depositors with claims of $1,000 or less. This is made possible by the waiving of their own share by 200 large depositors. Their $4,000,000 goes into the pot for the little fellows. They endorse the 8 per cent checks made out to them, and turn these checks into a temporary trust fund to use as described. They will take their chances on future disbursements. A deed of this sort makes everybody feel better.

That Body of Yours

PROTECT YOURSELF From "BOOTLEG" MERCHANDISE!

*The Ads in the Freeman
Safeguard Your Buying*

INFERIOR "depression" merchandise is still flooding the country on the look-out for "suckers" who will buy. These goods are below a wholesome standard of quality—not worth the money or anywhere near it! Whether you order a quart of ice cream for Junior's birthday party or a brace of shirts for friend husband you cannot afford to take chances with this sub-standard merchandise.

How can you avoid being bilked on inferior goods—endangered by foodstuffs prepared in unsanitary surroundings—cheated on commodities made by children or sweated labor? There are two safe ways!

First, patronize reputable merchants. Certainly, avoid buying from the door-to-door peddler you know nothing about!

Second, read and shop regularly through the ads in The Freeman. Dealers who sell goods of sound quality do not hesitate to advertise them in the newspaper where you can read, study and compare their qualifications and prices. An advertiser who must spend money to tell you about his goods seldom endangers his investment by falsehoods and misrepresentation. A consistent advertiser whose business reputation depends on your continued good will never does!

Freeman Ads Protect Your Pocketbook

When you read The Freeman ads you can compare any merchant's offering for quality, description and price with others in the paper. You're protecting yourself against POOR quality and unreasonable charges. The reputable advertising merchant knows this. He welcomes your comparison. He knows it will build up your sense of discrimination, teach you to appreciate his own worthwhile goods and save you from making future mistakes.

Freeman Ads Safeguard Your Time

You'll have more time for leisure if you let The Freeman ads plan each shopping trip for you. Before you leave home you'll know just which stores you're going to visit and what you're going to buy. No time wasted in walking around town comparing items and prices in a dozen different stores. You've done all that BEFOREHAND—in the pages of The Freeman! Shopping through the ads gives you extra hours for doing the things you LIKE to do!

Freeman Ads Assure Lasting Satisfaction

When you've made it a habit to buy from reputable merchants you know about—from advertisers who aren't afraid to let you compare their offerings side by side with others—THEN you'll find yourself getting longer life, more wear, and a fuller, lasting satisfaction from all your purchases. You'll know just where to find quality. You'll be a discriminating buyer. If all women bought so carefully, the makers of inferior "sucker-bait" goods would have to quit business.

And the NRA Does Its Part

When you shop the ads remember to look for the familiar little symbol that provides the best protection of all! Goods advertised "NRA" mean that no little children drudged weary hours in their making—no tired men and women slaved in a sweat-shop for a pitiful wage. "NRA" assures you that your purchase is made and sold by well-paid men and women who like their jobs well enough to bring you a carefully made, quality product!

The WORLD of STAMPS

By QUINTON JAMES

A new king for Belgium means a new set of stamps for that country if the policy followed since the postal system was adopted there is to be continued. Belgium's major issues always have included reproductions of the head of the reigning ruler.

But the portrait of the new king, Leopold III, already is familiar to philatelists. It made its first appearance on a semi-postal stamp of 1931, the then crown prince being pictured in the uniform of a soldier, wearing overseas cap.

The stamp was printed singly on a sheet of paper measuring approximately 5 by 6 inches and was sold exclusively at the Brussels Philatelic exposition in July, 1931. Colored carmine brown, its face value was two francs, 45 centimes, with an extra charge of 55 centimes for the ex-soldiers' relief fund.

King Albert Issues

The most recent issue to bear the picture of King Albert, who met his death while mountain climbing, was that of 1931, the eight values ranging from one franc to 10 francs. It showed King Albert in a campaign uniform, the design of the one-franc brown carmine being somewhat different from that of the other stamps, although the same portrait was used.

King Albert's picture first appeared on a stamp in the issue of 1912, with changes in design up to and through 1931. Before 1912, dating back to 1895, King Leopold II was the principal subject for illustration. On the earliest issues, beginning in 1849 and continuing through 1866, Leopold I, Belgium's first king, who ascended to the throne in 1831, when the kingdom was formed, was shown in two poses. Prior to 1831 Belgium was a part of the Netherlands.

The first three kings of Belgium appeared on later issues, that of 1915 having Leopold I, Albert I and Leopold II in a group, that of 1925 showing Leopold I and Albert I together, while in 1930 the independence centenary issue had the three kings on individual stamps.

In 1920, during King Albert's visit to the western hemisphere, he was accorded the distinction of being the only ruling monarch of another country to have his photograph on a stamp of Brazil. Together with President Pessoa of Brazil he was pictured on a 100-reis dull red stamp.

General Collection Wins

Experienced collectors regard it significant that at the recent national stamp exposition the winner of the grand prize—a bronze winged Mercury similar to that appearing on Grecian stamps—displayed a collection of nineteenth century stamps, approximately 95 per cent complete.

They take this to indicate that general collecting has not lost any of its hold on stamp fans, despite the fact that there has been quite a bit of specializing in recent years. This particular collection is the property of Charles Currie, New York attorney.

New U. S. Stamps

New York stamp authorities say that as yet they have no definite word from Washington as to when a new general issue of U. S. stamps is contemplated. They added that the only new stamps in prospect are a three-cent Maryland tercentenary and a three-cent Mother's day commemorative.

On March 5 the regular meeting of the Colonial City Stamp Club will be held at the Y. M. C. A. All members are asked to be present.

New Paltz to Benefit From CWA Art Work

New Paltz, Feb. 28.—As part of the program of the CWA to help unemployed artists and sculptors, certain old towns in this state with spots of historic interest, are being asked to send in orders for some form of sculpture or murals to perpetuate these bits of American history. New Paltz was one of the villages which received such an invitation and a committee from school and village sources headed by Mrs. Warren, art teacher at the high school, has held several meetings. The group is preparing to send in an order. The committee is: Mrs. Warren, Mrs. Cunningham, Miss Esther Benson, Miss Edith Holt, Miss Ruth Bennett, Bruyn Hasbrouck and Edward C. Elmore.

The projects under consideration are a series of oil paintings of the old stone houses for the high school library; several small figurines for the Elting Memorial Library; a pair of porcelain vases for the Normal School stage; a small fountain or something on that order for the garden of the Elting Memorial Library and a mural for the Normal School to be placed on the wall opposite the main entrance in place of the picture of West Point.

Church of The Air
A half hour Christian Science "Church of The Air" program, under the auspices of the Christian Science Committee on Publication for the State of New York, will be broadcast over the national network of the Columbia Broadcasting System, on Sunday afternoon, March 4, from 1 to 1:30 (Eastern Standard Time); Station WABC.

MILLION DOLLARS

Judith Lane inherited the vast fortune—but there were strings attached. She knew accepting the bequest would wreck her marriage, bring heart-ache and unhappiness; deriding meant breaking faith, violating a trust. What could she choose?

Kingston: "Miss Fane's Baby is Stolen." The combination of Rupert Hughes' story and Dorothea Wieck's dramatic ability proves to be startling and effective entertainment. This talkie, coming at a time when kidnapping is one of America's biggest curses, tells, in a series of pathos, thrills and suspense, how the child of a famous motion picture star is stolen, and the star, torn with grief, wonders whether or not to call the police. If she does, her baby may be killed. But how can she contact the kidnappers alone? She finally keeps a rendezvous with the kidnappers, but the plan goes wrong. Only through the help of others does she finally have her baby returned alive. For sheer dramatic power, realism, and terrific suspense, this motion picture is one of the best of its kind ever produced. Supporting Dorothea Wieck are Baby LeRoy, Jack LaRue, Alice Brady, Alan Hale and Dorothy Burgess.

Orpheum: "Blind Adventure" and "Cheating Blondes." A London fog is the locale for the first picture. A young American, seeking excitement, finds it on the dreary streets of London when he gets lost and is ushered into several hours of intrigue, romance and excitement. Robert Armstrong, Ralph Bellamy, Helen Mack and Roland Young are in the cast. "Cheating Blondes" offers Thelma Todd in a story of gold digging ladies and how they get that way. A capable cast supports her. Broadway: "Sin of Nora Moran" and "Pleasure Cruise." Heavy tragedy hangs over the first offering on this double feature program. A woman, tossed about by an unkind fate, ends up in the electric chair because of her love for a man, and dies for a crime she didn't commit. The show is told in a series of backflashes. In other words, what happened in the past, is thrown on the screen as the trial progresses. It is all a little confusing and glibly laden. Zita Johann, Paul Cavanagh, Alan Dinehart and John Miljan are in the cast. "Pleasure Cruise" attempts to show that the much advertised southern cruises are just an opportunity for married people to do a little romancing with new acquaintances on ship board. Roland Young and Ralph Forbes are in the cast.

Orpheum: "My Lips Betray." Musical comedy in a mythical setting, with Allan Harvey playing the winsome role of a cabaret singer. Along comes handsome king John Boles. He falls in love with the little café singer, and all is romantic, lighthearted and pleasing to the eye and ear. El Brendel acts in a few good comedy moments as the king's chauffeur.

Zeesh and Evory of Kingston Win DUSO Scoring Honors

When the scores of last Friday's contests, the last in the DUSO series this season, were tallied, it was found that Zeesh and Evory of Kingston had won the scoring honors for the first two places in the series.

Zeesh, taking the top position, played with 50 points and Evory, second, with 48 points.

Johnny Zeesh, captain and star of the team, had the best of the season, having won several times and at the beginning of the season was way out in front with no one anywhere near him. However, after the half-way mark of the DUSO season, Zeesh went into a slump and dropped from first place to second and then last week to third place, in successive weeks. In the Port Jervis game, Friday, Zeesh recovered his long lost form, just in time, and by it he gained 10 points to jump once again into first place.

Bob Evory, local center, started from the bottom of the list and in the last few weeks has been hobnobbing with the leaders. In each successive game, Evory's score ranged until last week, he topped second place, which he did again this week.

Barley of Monticello, who last week led the pack, was held to a single point in the Ellenville game Friday. This put him down to fourth place. Vuolo, who was fourth last week, jumped up to third place for the final standing.

The latest individual scoring list follows:

SPORT SLANTS

By ALAN J. GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor)

Apparently, there's no debate means of testing a man's ability to be a champion with his job or in a special field of sports.

That it is that Sir Malcolm Campbell, the only man living who has driven an automobile faster than 200 miles an hour and the holder of eight land speed records by a wide margin, is not at all satisfied with what he had done and is coming back to the United States for another crack at the world record.

Sir Malcolm told the present mile mark of 273.15 m. p. h. made last winter on the sands of Daytona Beach, Fla. He has four times improved upon this world record and lived to tell the story, but he says he won't be satisfied until he has driven a car at the rate of 300 miles an hour.

"I have felt several times that I had this within my grasp," says Campbell, "but circumstances have prevented it, such as the weather or condition of the beach, or both. It will take a perfect combination of things—and a bit of luck—to pull through."

One of the British speed king's friends puts the matter more bluntly: "He will either break his neck or break the record to pieces the next time. The goal of 300 miles an hour has become almost an obsession."

May Try Salt Lake Course
For his next assault upon the citadel of time, Campbell plans to turn his Bluebird II loose upon one of the smooth salt beds west of Salt Lake City, in preference to Daytona Beach, where the speed tests are subject to the whimsical things the tide does to the sand every day.

The important thing when you are putting on the "full ball" with a piece of machinery like the Bluebird is to have plenty of room for starting and as much again for slowing down. Daytona Beach, with a maximum runway of around 10 or 11 miles, left Campbell "a bit cramped."

In other words he did not feel he could always get his machine up to the maximum speed by the time he hit the measured or "record" mile where the electrical timing device operates.

Out in Utah, the salty surface can be smoothed out sufficiently to give Sir Malcolm 50 miles in a beeline, if he wants that much. It's wider, too, without the hazards of sand dunes on one side and the ocean on the other.

Concentration Incarnate
The thing about Campbell that you can't misjudge is his complete concentration upon his speed job, once he takes it in hand.

Ballyhoo doesn't mean a thing to him. I believe he has annoyed more than one chamber of commerce by rolling out his big machine at some unearthly hour, with scarcely any advance warning, and seizing the opportunity offered by favorable circumstances to crack the speed record. Since it's impossible for him to appreciate the roar of the crowd, anyway, why bother about it?

What does a man think about trying to travel 300 m. p. h.? I asked him that once and got a characteristic reply: "You don't have time to do much thinking or feel any particular fears. All you can do is keep a firm hold on the wheels, your eyes on the markers and your foot down. And trust to luck."
